Leadership Scrapbook

I received this assignment last year in a session conducted by Linda Cooper at Ceres High School so I cannot take credit, but I love this assignment. This is the first year that I have done it and my kids do a great job with it. It is a personal reflection worked on all year long with deadlines that will allow them to share with their peers and see their memories for years to come. I have even developed it more by doing a photography photo shoot with each one of my students. At first they were not sure, but they loved the personal attention and have a desire to do more photo shoots. Through this simple little activity the kids have gained more confidence in themselves and I am very pleased with this component. I have found that to purchase the scrapbook students can find them at Ross, TJ Max, Kohls, Michaels, Beverly's, etc for pretty good prices. The kids bring their own supplies and share with one another. A great lesson to teach creativity, team work, sharing, and a common bond through memories of a leadership family.

If you are interested in this copy and do not want to type it up feel free to email me or get into contact with Linda Cooper. She is an amazing source that has helped me in so many ways!
